The paradigm above places the SOI-LA test assessments in the broader context of total human functioning. The paradigm presents three different areas. Each column can be assessed. Curriculum, as well as treatment, can be matched to the findings within each column above.

Area 1: Encompasses language, Structure of Intellect learning abilities, and academic performance. Scholarship and creativity show up here with high functioning.

Area 2: Encompasses social and emotional functioning, sometimes called "affective" functioning by educators. Leadership shows up here.

Area 3: Encompasses physiological and neurological functioning. Talent shows up here.

School psychology training programs should be based on this paradigm.
